Hanes gweinyddol / Braslun bywgraffyddol | Administrative history | Biographical sketch

Nodyn | Note

John Walsh (1726-95) went to India in 1742 where he was appointed a writer at Fort St George. He left India, however, in 1747 but returned again in 1749 or 1750. During this second sojourn in India he held a number of administrative posts with the East India Co. as well as being engaged in private trade. In 1767 he was appointed private secretary to Lord Clive who was married to his mother's niece, Margaret Maskelyne. He finally left India in 1760 and returned to England 'clearly acting as agent for some of Clive's affairs'. More importantly, he returned with a fortune which he estimated at £140,000. Armed with such a sum he set about acquiring the trappings of a wealthy country gentleman, not least a landed estate and a seat in the House of Commons.

A few months after his arrival in England he purchased the Hockenhall estate in Cheshire. Eleven years later, however, he was trying to sell it for 12,000 guineas. He seems to have succeeded, since there are no further references to this estate in the Ormathwaite papers. Having already purchased a town house in London and a small estate in Warfield, Berkshire in 1764 he began, in 1768, to extend his purchases to Ireland and Radnorshire.

In March of that year he purchased from Sir Henry Hartstonge the manors of Cefnlllys and Busmore and a number of farms in Cefnlllys and Llanfihangel Nantmellan for £13,450. Two months later there followed the purchase, from the assignees of Goddard Haagen, a bankrupt London merchant, of 2,067 acres, comprising the manor of Coed Swydd and properties in Llanfihangel Rhydieithion, Cefnlllys and Llandegleu, at a cost of £12,908. In August he spent a further £27,000 in acquiring a substantial estate in County Cork, Ireland. Two years later he returned to the Irish land market and purchased from the heavily indebted Francis Thomas Maurice, 3rd earl of Kerry, an estate in County Kerry, for £15,230. Three years later, in 1774, he made a further purchase from the earl at a cost of £5,944. In between these two Kerry purchases he also acquired for £2,600 some properties in Cefnlllys and Llangynllo, Radnorshire, from the Duke of Chandos.

By his will, proved in 1795, John Walsh devised his estate to his niece Margaret Benn (nee Fowke) until her heir male should reach the age of twenty one, provided she and her husband adopt the name of Walsh, which they duly did in the same year. Francis Fowke, Margaret's only surviving brother, was disinherited by his uncle because of a clash of personalities and because he lived with a 'low, vicious' woman, upon whom he fathered several illegitimate children.

Margaret Fowke was the daughter of Joseph Fowke who made a moderate fortune in India and who, subsequently, gambled it away in London gaming clubs. Brought up by her maternal uncle, John Walsh, she went to join her father in India in 1776. During her ten year stay in India she met her future husband, John Benn of Ormathwaite, Cumbria. His father had died just before he was born and he was, consequently, virtually adopted by his uncle Dr William Brownrigg, the chemist. Through the influence of his friend John Robinson, Lord North's private secretary, Brownrigg obtained a post for his nephew with the East India Co. The nephew arrived in Calcutta in 1778 and remained in India until 1786. After his return to England, together with a fortune estimated at £80,000, he married Margaret Walsh in June 1787.

Unlike John Walsh, John Benn did not invest lavishly in land, though he made several additions to the family estate in Warfield, Ormathwaite (which he had inherited from his uncle) and Radnorshire. Most of his Indian fortune was wisely invested in mortgages and Government stocks. It was this fortune, made initially in India, and carefully nurtured afterwards, which enabled Sir John Benn Walsh, eldest son and heir of John Benn (or Sir John Benn Walsh as he now was) to greatly expand both his Radnorshire and Irish estate. Writing in 1840 he estimated that he had inherited over £119,000 from his father.

In 1819, when Sir John became twenty one years old, he inherited according to the provisions of John Walsh's will, all the latter's estates in Radnorshire Ireland and Warfield. Following his father's death in 1825, he inherited the Cumbria estate, together with all the landed purchases which his father had made from 1787 onwards. In 1829 the combined rental of all his scattered estates amounted to £7,402 per annum, with slightly over half that sum coming from his Irish estates. In 1866 the combined rentals amounted to £21,363 per annum with the Radnorshire estate producing £8,744, the Irish estates £7,933, the Cumberland estate £4,229 and the remainder coming from properties in London. All his personal income from monies invested in mortgages and stocks amounted to only £1,553 a year. The estate rental had almost trebled between 1829 and 1866. Part of this increase can be attributed to rising rents and to the discovery of a very valuable iron ore mine on the Cumbria estate, but the greater part of the increased rental was due to the very substantial landed purchases made by Sir John, especially in Radnorshire. In 1840, however, he calculated that his purchases in that county had cost him £58,550. A rough calculation based upon the title deeds of post-1840 purchases and scattered references in his diaries indicate that he spent another £43,500 on properties in Radnorshire between 1840 and 1877. Overall these landed purchases cost him a minimum of £100,000. The estate which he inherited from John Walsh measured

4,266 acres in 1820. In 1873 the estate apparently measured almost 12,500 acres with an annual rental of over £9,200.

The expansion of the family estates, conducted so successfully by Sir John Benn Walsh, was brought to a crashing halt by his eldest son and heir, Arthur John Walsh, 2nd Lord Ormathwaite. Arthur was in serious financial difficulties well before his father died in 1881. He had been borrowing heavily (using his expected inheritance as security) since at least 1850. Most of his debts were incurred in the pursuit of his abiding passion: shooting. The full extent of his liabilities were not revealed, however, until after his father's death in 1881.

In 1886 the Ormathwaite estates had been mortgaged for £153,755. Ten years later the figure stood at £167,731 whilst unsecured creditors were owed over £22,300. By 1890 estate revenue was unable to meet all its annual charges: interest payments were £3,000 in arrears. In an effort to keep creditors at bay the mid-1890s saw some frantic selling of assets. Furniture, plate and farming implements were sold between 1894 and 1895. All the receipts, roughly £10,000, were paid to unsecured creditors. The inevitable could not be delayed much longer and, in 1895, Arthur, 2nd Lord Ormathwaite, duly presented to the High Court a petition alleging his inability to pay his debts. Following the petition the court appointed a receiver and a scheme of arrangement to pay off the creditors was drawn up. The newly appointed receiver was able, to a substantial degree, to pay off the unsecured creditors, but achieved very little as regards paying off the mortgages. In 1904 it was estimated that the estate still owed the mortgages at least £164,000.

The bulk of the Irish estates were sold off between 1906 and 1912 for about £84,000. The first sales of the Radnorshire estate were delayed until shortly after the death of the 2nd Lord Ormathwaite in 1920. By November of that year at least eighteen properties had been sold for £18,145. In 1921 the outlying portions of both the Radnorshire and Warfield estates, together with the entire Cumbria estate (except for the iron ore mine) were sold for £54,645. All the remainder of the Radnorshire estate, totalling 11,977 acres, was sold in 1945, possibly enforced by the need to pay estate duties following the deaths of Arthur Henry John, 3rd Lord Ormathwaite in 1937 and George Harry, 4th Lord Ormathwaite, in 1943.

Diaries of Margaret Walsh. To avoid tedious repetition the general contents of the diaries can be summarised as follows: ill-health of various members of the family; visits, dinner engagements, London season, alterations to Warfield, reading and her mathematical exercises or 'propositions' as she calls them, that is, propositions in Sir Isaac Newton's Principia. All the diaries contain a list of letters written by Margaret Walsh; most contain lists of visitors received and visits made, dosages of medicine taken by her and a few medical recipes. The diaries have been numbered on the front cover by Margaret Walsh. The first diary, covering 1807-10 is now missing and her diary no. 13, for 1821, was missing when she drew up an inventory of her diaries in 1825 (Fe 4/15, f. 159) (but note that she has made an error in this inventory since she states that it is her diary no. 14 for 1822 that is missing: in fact this is FC 4/12). Her entries for Dec. 1819 were kept in a separate 'small book' (Fe 4/15, f. 159) and this is also no longer extant. Apparently, she kept her diaries until 1836, when she died, but those for 1829-36 have not survived.

Diaries of Sir John Walsh. In many respects the diaries are similar in contents to his mother's (i.e. personal and domestic) but with more emphasis on the London season and politics and they are, in general, far more detailed. The earlier diaries are dominated by his obsessive ambition to make a mark in society. By endeavouring to create a web of connexions he sought to become known to the most powerful and fashionable aristocratic families in England. Such connections would, he hoped, fulfil both his marital and political ambitions. He has some very pertinent things to say about the closing down of the avenues of advancement after the end of the Napoleonic wa[?r]s when the aristocracy closed ranks [see Fg 1/3-4]. After his marriage in 1825 the diaries, naturally, are more domestic: the pleasures and pains of parenthood and later of grand-parenthood, family holidays, his wife's relations, etc. The frequent visits which he made to co. Rad. to inspect his estates, or to reside there for a few months usually at the end of the year, to attend the Assizes, Quarter Sessions, etc., have not as a rule been included in what follows. The dates of these activities can be ascertained from the summary of his diaries in Fg 1/43. He also made frequent visits to his Irish estates in Cos Kerry and Cork, Ireland: these will also not be referred to below since the relevant entries have been published by James S. Donnelly Jr, 'The Journals of Sir John Benn-Walsh Relating to the Management of His Irish Estates, 1823-64' in the Journal of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society, vols LXXX, No. 230 (1974), pp. 86-123, and LXXXI, No. 231 (1975), pp. 15-42. His diaries covering 31 Sept. 1816 to 21 July 1822 and 1 Jan. 1825 to 31 Dec. 1829 are missing. For a summary of their contents see Fg 1/43, pp. 62-77.

Correspondence. The family correspondence has been divided into two groups: bound and unbound letters. With the exception of G 1 below all the bound family letters (G 2-51) were arranged and stitched together by Sir John Walsh in 1828 and 1837 and afterwards placed in uniform box files: these were labelled 'Family Letters & Papers' together with the appropriate number. The correspondence (roughly 2,500 letters) begins after Sir John Walsh's departure to Eton in 1811 and ends with his mother's death in 1836. The first extant box file is numbered 'Vol. VII'; presumably the first six box files contained (at least) the correspondence between Sir John Walsh's parents between 1786 and 1811 since very few such letters have survived in this archive or in the archive now housed at the India Office Library. The unbound family correspondence comprises a small number of letters missed by Sir John Benn Walsh (many in fact were tucked away in his mother's diaries) and a small remnant of what was once a large body of post-1836 family letters (see Introduction).

Natur a chynnwys | Scope and content:

Deeds and documents received from Farrer & Co. of Lincolns Inn Fields, London, solicitors, per the British Records Association (parcel 2749) in October 1999 (NLW acc. no. C1999/12). These papers are supplemental to the Ormathwaite Papers, and mainly relate to the marriage settlement, mortgages, bankruptcy, receivership and executorship of Arthur Henry John Walsh (1859-1937), third baron Ormathwaite. The papers were accumulated by partners of Farrer & Co. who acted for Marquis Camden, Ormathwaite's brother-in-law and main creditor, as well as acting as Ormathwaite's estate receiver after his bankruptcy, and acting for his executors after his death. Included are papers relating to estates in Radnorshire, the Warfield Park estate (Bracknell, Berkshire), the Ormathwaite Hall estate (Keswick, Cumberland) and various freehold and leasehold properties in London and Middlesex, as well as a very few papers relating to the unsaleable remnants of an Irish estate (Counties Cork and Kerry). For a history of the estate, see the introduction to the schedule to the NLW, Ormathwaite Papers, pp. i-xi.

Trefniant | Arrangement:

These papers reached NLW in five boxes numbered 584 (parts 1 and 2), 585 and 586 (parts 1 and 2). Some of the material in each box was bundled, but most was loose. Much of the loose material undoubtedly represents bundles that had fallen apart. No defining distinction could be made between the contents of the various boxes: all the boxes contained deeds (mostly drafts and copies) relating to each of the Berkshire, Cumberland and Radnorshire estates, as well as letter files and papers relating to mortgages, and all but box 586 (part 2) contained papers relating to the Inland Revenue. Papers relating to more than one estate, or to indeterminable estates, have been collected together under 'Whole estate'. --The whole collection has been arranged: family papers (F), correspondence (C), mortgages (M), whole estate (W), Berkshire estate (B), Cumberland estate (A), Irish estate (I), London and Middlesex properties (L), Radnorshire estate (R). Surviving bundles have been preserved, and are noted as original bundles; all other files are collections of loose papers. A number of maps and plans were transferred to the Department of Pictures and Maps (2000-08-17, acc. no's 0200008293, 8295, 8298, 8301, 8303, 8307, 8311 and 8321); one is a plan (two copies) of the northern portion of the Melchbourne estate, co. Beds, offered for sale by auction, 1931; the others are described in the appropriate part of the schedule.
